

Betashares Martin Currie Real Income Fund (managed fund)

30 April 2024

Objective

RINC invests in an actively managed portfolio primarily comprising listed Australian real assets, such as A-REITs, utilities and infrastructure securities. Up to 20% of the portfolio may be allocated to listed real assets in other global developed countries. RINC aims to generate a pre-tax income yield higher than that produced by the S&P/ ASX 200 Index, and to increase that income above the rate of inflation (as measured by the Consumer Price Index) over the long term. RINC is managed by Martin Currie, a leading equities manager and member of the Franklin Templeton Group.

Benefits

Attractive, growing income

RINC invests in quality companies that own 'hard' physical assets and are expected to pay strong dividend income from reliable revenue streams.

Keep pace with inflation

Real asset businesses are typically well-positioned to increase revenue and profit over time, enabling them to grow income in excess of the rise in the cost of living.

Lower concentration risk than Australian Property Securities Index

As RINC's focus is broader than property, it provides more diversified exposure to listed real assets, avoiding the sector and stock concentration issues associated with the A-REIT Index. The ability to include some allocation to international securities provides opportunity for exposure to real asset sub-sectors not available in Australia.

Lower volatility

RINC targets lower volatility than the S&P/ASX 200 Index.

Monthly commentary

What happened in the market?

The Australian real asset universe underperformed the broader Australian equity market in April. The listed real estate market was down -7.6% in April (as measured by the S&P/ASX 300 A-REIT Accumulation Index). Infrastructure was down -0.1% in April (as measured by the S&P/ASX Infrastructure Accumulation Index). Utilities were up 4.8% in April (as measured by the S&P/ASX 300 Utilities Accumulation Index). In comparison, the Australian equity market fell -2.9% in April (as measured by the S&P/ASX 200 Accumulation Index).

What happened in the Fund?

The Fund was down 4.60% for the month of April. Within the Fund, at the sector level, utilities positively contributed, while real estate was the largest detractor, followed by infrastructure and communication services. At the stock level, Guangdong Investment, AGL Energy and Contact Energy were the largest positive contributors, while Scentre Group, Charter Hall Retail REIT and Stockland were the biggest detractors.

Positives within the Fund included, Hong Kong water distribution company Guangdong Investment rebounded after being sold off in prior months. Cashflow stability is a feature from the water business and management have flagged an intention to focus capital deployment into their core strategies, which was well received. Electricity and gas retailer AGL Energy performed well as electricity prices rose from February lows on the back of improving demand from a combination of more favourable weather and the market starting to talk about the upside to energy demand growth driven by AI and data centre expansions. New Zealand renewable energy utility Contact Energy rose alongside peers as it continues to benefit from elevated electricity prices, its geothermal expansion commissioning plus New Zealand's clean energy outlook improving with industry making progress on electrification.

After a strong recent run, retail landlords Scentre Group and Charter Hall Retail REIT (CQR) were weakest over the month. We note at Scentre Group's AGM, management provided an update highlighting that visitation is up 2.1% in the first 12 weeks of 2024 and sales are up 3.1% in January and February. And while CQR's triple net rent outlook linked to CPI is slowing, it remains well above pre-covid with its particularly defensive assets. Diversified property group Stockland also gave back after a previous strength, with the ACCC postponing their decision on Stockland's acquisition of 12 residential communities from Lendlease to an unknown date. The Group's quarterly update showed improving residential sales rates (excluding Victoria) but relies on a big fourth quarter settlement skew (~60%) to hit its guidance.
