Access growth opportunities in the global agriculture industry

The Betashares Global Agriculture ETF – Currency Hedged (ASX: FOOD) provides exposure to a diversified portfolio of the world's leading agriculture companies (ex-Australia) in a single ASX trade.

GLOBAL GROWTH OPPORTUNITY

Due to improving living standards and rising populations, demand for agricultural products – food and food production – is anticipated to remain strong in the years ahead.

INTERNATIONAL DIVERSIFICATION

FOOD invests in leading agricultural companies located outside of Australia, allowing investors to instantly diversify their portfolios holdings away from the Australian sharemarket.

REDUCED CURRENCY RISK

FOOD is hedged to the Australian Dollar, substantially eliminating the effects of currency fluctuations on returns.

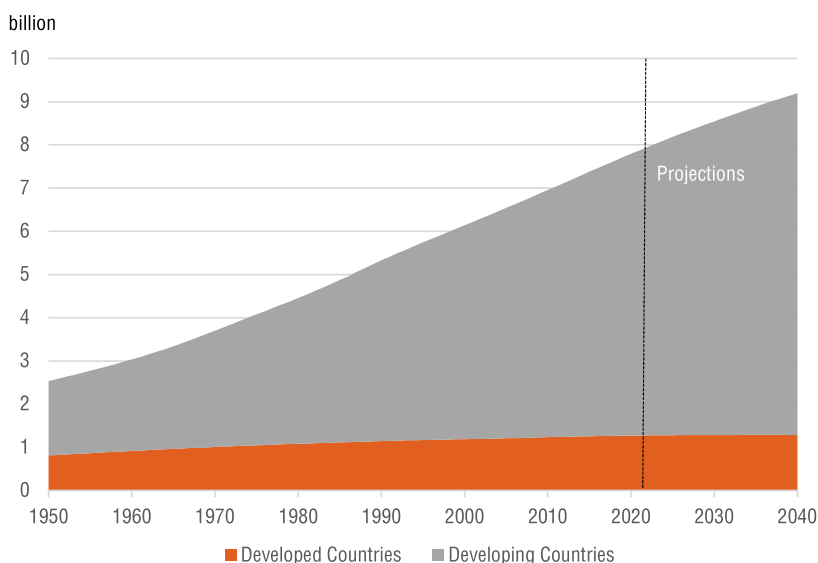

COST-EFFECTIVE

The management costs for FOOD are 0.57% p.a.¹ (or $57 for every $10,000 invested), making FOOD a cost-effective investment for those seeking exposure to global agriculture companies.

Demand for agricultural products and services is expected to continue rising

How to use FOOD in a portfolio:

FOOD can be used by investors for a variety of investment strategies, for example:

- A small component of an international shares exposure.
- Tactical exposure to the performance of the global agriculture sector.
- ASX: FOOD is part of our global sector fund series.

Investment risks include market risk, international investment risk, agriculture sector risk and concentration risk. The Fund's returns can be expected to be more volatile (ie vary up and down) than a broad global shares exposure, given its more concentrated exposure.
